Classical Music Programming - National

Performance Today with Fred Child

“Classical music is a living, breathing, art form with meaning and resonance for our lives today — something always changing and evolving and astounding and, at its best, revolutionary,” says Performance Today host Fred Child. The award-winning, daily, two-hour radio show makes the concert hall experience immediate and accessible for well over one million Americans. M - F, 9 - 11 AM

Harmonia

From the transcendent sounds of Anonymous 4 to the sublime realm of chant, or the passion of an Italian Baroque violin sonata, the world of early music draws new listeners in unprecedented numbers. Harmonia, a weekly radio program produced in conjunction with Indiana University's world-renowned Early Music Institute, brings the music of earlier periods to life for radio audiences. Hosted by Angela Mariani. Sundays at 9 AM

Music with Julie Amacher & Valerie Kabler

Julie Amacher brings listeners some of the most beautiful music in the world, drawn from the heart of the Classical and Romantic repertoires. This is the perfect radio companion for lovers of good music. Monday thru Friday, 11 - 3 PM

From the Top

Recorded in live concert settings in concert halls around the U.S., From the Top captures the top-notch musicianship, offbeat humor, and insights of America's best classical musicians aged nine to 18. High-profile performers such as Yo-Yo Ma, Dawn Upshaw, Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg, and Bobby McFerrin have appeared to talk about their musical influences and the development of their careers, and to perform with the young artists.

The program has been described by the Chicago Tribune as “One of the most original programs in the history of public radio,” while the Los Angeles Times declared, “From the Top is making classical music wild and fun and crazy!” Hosted by Christopher O'Reilly. Sunday morning at 4 PM.
